FOUR JAILED IN RIOT ON MAXWELL STREET.

Benny Fox, his son Sam, 636 Maxwell street, and Louis and Leo Fox, 638 Maxwell street, brothers of Benny, were arrested today in a riot on Maxwell street between Halsted and Jefferson.

Trouble arose when Supt. of Streets Goodwin and Ward Supt. Schug attempted to enforce a new ordinance which went into effect last night prohibiting fruit stands, soda stands, chicken coops and all sidewalk stands on Maxwell street from Halsted to the river.

When they attempted to remove a chicken coop a mob of men and women attacked the officers. A riot call was sent to the Maxwell street station and a wagon with ten policemen responded.

With drawn clubs policemen charged the crowd. The four Foxes, ringleaders, were arrested. They were taken to the station and booked on charges of disturbance and resistance.

After they had been locked in cells the wives of two of the men led a crowd of women to the station. They gathered in front of the building and again the police were forced to disperse them. One woman eluded the policemen and dashed through the station hall to the courtroom, where she attempted to tell Judge Dicker of her troubles.

Policeman finally captured her and ejected her. The four men will be tried tomorrow morning.

PLUNGES EIGHT STORIES TO DEATH.

Frank Fifer, 20 years old, a bellboy at the Hotel Bradford, 3000 Michigan avenue, plunged eight stories from the roof of that hotel to his death this morning.

Fifer went to the roof of the hotel with several others. They amused themselves by jeering and throwing things at the non-union newsboys and their police guards on the corner below.

Fifer leaned too far over the edge of the roof, lost his balance and fell. He was killed instantly.

Fifer came to Chicago from St. Louis. He was expecting his mother and his sister to visit him within the next few days.

HITS COP WHO CURSED HIM—FINED $50

Michael McLaughlin made the mistake of not knowing a policeman when he saw one in plain clothes yesterday, and it cost him $50 and costs in Judge Beitel's court today.

McLaughlin, who is 55 years old, is a plumber. He lives at the
